

Visuals Bridge The Language Barrier

As litigation and legal counseling become increasingly global, visuals become increasingly important for overcoming language barriers.

When facing language barriers with clients or decision makers, visuals can provide clarity and avoid confusion. Visual aids (pictures, graphs, charts, etc.) can help you construct an effective bridge to your listeners.

On a recent trip to Japan, the client and his team employed visual presentations. The visuals helped to eliminate the communication gap with his primarily Japanese speaking audience.

ThemeVision helped by creating simple presentations of parts and their uses, which transcended language differences.
