Amit Patel, JD, MA

Amit Patel is a social scientist with a passion for the law. Or, if you prefer, a lawyer with a passion for cognitive science. As a trial consultant, he brings expertise in both fields to litigators who depend on case-specific research and evidence-based recommendations for case analysis.

For teams struggling with the tunnel vision that being too close to a case can often create, his scientific, yet practical insights into human behavior can be game-changing.

Amit is an accomplished moderator, adept at leading focus groups and conducting mock trials. He is equally effective behind the scenes—performing statistical analysis or managing client projects and logistics. Amit is an Ipro Certified TrialDirector® Expert, helping clients organize and present multimedia case materials and evidence in the courtroom. He also enjoys writing about the intersection of psychology and the law, and regularly authors papers on the subject.

In his spare time, Amit vehemently roots for his alma mater UGA in football and his hometown Braves.
